

I spent three weeks at the National Medical Research Center Obstetrics, Gynecology and Perinatology named after Academician V.I. Kulakov in Moscow, Russia, as a short term fellow. First of all, it was great. Everybody was helpfull. I got excellent friendships. There were many interesting cases about pathological pregnancies in the hospital, so it was a valuable experience for me.

I visited departments of normal and high risk pregnancy and the Perinatal Center. I attended vaginal and operative deliveries, fetoscopy, fetoreduction, intrauterine blood transfusion, ultrasound examinations, uterine arteries embolization, and some other procedures. I also practiced hands-on training in their Simulation Training Center. I made a presentation about OB&GYN training at my hospital in Turkey, in the Center staff conference.

Hereby I would like to thank EBCOG, ENTOG, Prof. Acad. Gennady Sukhikh (the Center Director), Dr. Ekaterina Yarotskaya (Head, Dept. International Cooperation) for giving me this precious opportunity.
